Timoshenko Sends Soldiers Toward Krasnograd To Trap Germans

By JAMES E. BROWN

MOSCOW, May 18—With suicide squads of Nazi paratroops being cut down behind the lines even before their feet touch the ground, Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's attack against Kharkov surged forward today along an estimated 100-mile front. Gains of 37 miles were recorded.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda said that the Germans were resorting to desperate use of paratroops in an effort to cut the Soviet lines but that all attempts had failed. Three separate parachute units, one of 130 men, another of 50 and a third of 30 were machine-gunned in the skies or cut down with sabres on the ground.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A Stockholm report told of a Soviet counter-drive on the Kerch peninsula by which the Russians succeeded in breaking out of a German encirclement. Reuter heard from somewhere on the German frontier that the Nazis had concentrated 2,000 dive-bombers for the Kerch battle.) Latest announcement said that additional villages on the Kharkov front are being liberated "constantly" as Timoshenko's huge mechanized force advanced over roads strewn with burnt-out Nazi tanks and German dead.

The Germans, a Moscow broadcaster said, are suffering "enormous losses." Three Soviet units alone accounted for 91 German tanks.

Recording gains of up to 37 miles since the push against Kharkov began, one salient of the Soviet armies drove far to the southwest in the direction of Krasnograd in an apparent flanking movement to effect encirclement of the city.

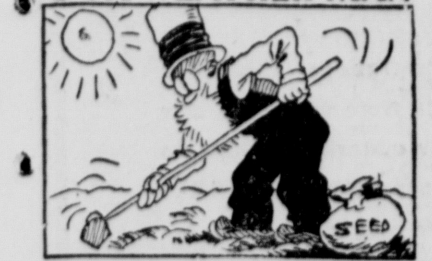

Kerch Fight Continues

The battle for Kerch, which the Germans claim to have occupied, raged without let-up, according to the official announcement. There was "strenuous fighting" in the neighborhood of the port of Kerch, on the eastern time of the Kerch peninsula, in the Crimea, the Russians said.

"Smashing German resistance, our troops continued to advance in the Kharkov area," a supplement to the communiqué said. "On another sector the Soviets dislodged the Germans from a strongly fortified point."

A special communiqué issued by the Red army acknowledged heavy counter-attacks by large formations of German tank and armored forces after the Russians had broken through the Nazis (Continued on Page Two)

Aussies Gird For Attack Believed Certain To Come

By LEE VAN ATTA
MELBOURNE, May 18—Australia's war belt was tightened to the last notch today as the nation awaited the anticipated resumption of hostilities on the sea and in the air in the theatre just north of this island continent.

The word "luxury" is spoken only in the past tense in Australia today, as the full effect of the government's rationing program has come into every home. Canned goods are almost unobtainable, the government is tightening control of gasoline, and country weekends are almost a thing of the past.

The newspapers are talking about possible resumption of the Coral sea battle and although General MacArthur's communiques during the week were reasonably cheerful, officers did not take weekend holidays and headquarters bustled with anxious war leaders.

Most observers agreed that a major development of some sort would come within the next few weeks, perhaps even days, but where and when the foe will strike was a question that remained officially unanswered.

Some quarters maintain the Japs will not attempt another thrust toward Australia; others see a full-scale move toward the continent by the enemy as inevitable and vitally necessary if the Japs are to retain a measure of control over the southwest Pacific.

Whatever strategy is forthcoming, Australia today stands on the most complete war footing since the day that Darwin and the Australian mainland took their first aerial blows from the Japs.

The Coral sea battle brought the sharp reality of imminent danger to all Australians, a reality which previously had been considered by most as remote.

The fall of Bataan and Corregidor, which never were considered seriously here despite warnings from Washington, accentuated in the minds of many Australians their critical vulnerability. Perhaps this was best evidenced in Canberra where government leaders, with the exception of heated debate over mishandling of the clothes rationing program, devoted themselves throughout the week to hot discussions of war issues.

Although the terse MacArthur communiques would indicate there is a virtual stalemate in this area, military sources hastened to correct this impression.

They pointed out that the 48th Jap raid on Port Moresby proves that the Japanese are determined to knock out this advanced base, no matter what the cost. The Japs have paid heavily for their assaults against this tiny New Guinea city, which is one of the hubs of offensive and defensive strategy in the battle of Australia.

Observers say that American airmen are fighting the best possible type of war under present conditions—aerial sorties designed to neutralize Japanese strength in the south Pacific as long as possible to enable the United Nations to build up the resources of Australia.

The daily communiques report destruction of numbers of Jap warplanes, ranging from two and three to as many as twenty. United Nations losses are very light.

At Lae, Salamaua, Rabaul and in the Louisiade Archipelago, the Americans have scored heavily during the last months, and the results of these raids were evident in the weakening Jap attacks against Moresby.

RAF SQUADRONS HIT REICH SHIP OFF TRONDHEIM

HOLLAND FIELDS STRUCK

One Of Heaviest Raids In War Conducted Along Enemy's Coast

LONDON, May 18 — Large formations of British bombers and torpedo planes attacked the German heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen and are believed to have sent heavy torpedoes smashing into the Nazi warship, an air ministry communiqué said today.

Squadrons of Beauforts, Blenheims and Beaufighters of the coastal command engaged the Prinz Eugen and escorting destroyers in a fierce battle off the southern tip of Norway during the night when reconnaissance planes discovered the cruiser attempting to make its way to a German port.

The 10,000-ton cruiser escaped along with the Nazi battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau during February when the three warships slipped out of the occupied French port of Brest and fled northward through the English channel.

Destroyers escorting the cruiser, carrying a normal complement of 850, were raked by cannon fire.

Many aerial combats took place during the engagement in which the Prinz Eugen was hit.

"The Prinz Eugen yesterday was reported by reconnaissance aircraft steaming south along the coast of Norway," an air ministry communiqué said.

Was At Trondheim

"The vessel had been lying at Trondheim fjord after being damaged by one of his majesty's submarines and evidently was making its way back to a dockyard in Germany."

"The coastal command sent out a striking force of Beauforts, Hudsons, Blenheims and Beaufighters which attacked the Prinz Eugen during the night near the southern tip of Norway."

"Preliminary reports indicate she was hit by torpedoes from Beauforts led by Wing Commander M. F. D. Williams."

"The Prinz Eugen was escorted by four destroyers and formations of fighters."

"There was a heavy engagement in which Beaufighters raked the decks of the destroyers with cannon fire and many combats took place."

"Five Messerschmitt 109s were destroyed and a number of others damaged."

"Nine of our aircraft are missing."

Holland Dromes, Other Areas Hit

LONDON, May 18—Nazi-held airdromes in occupied Holland were blasted early today by Boston (Douglas) bombers piloted by Canadian fliers.

One of the heaviest aerial assaults of the war was conducted against the occupied coast of France by other RAF bombers.

Lashing out at midnight across the English channel the RAF planes pounded targets on the continent for two hours.

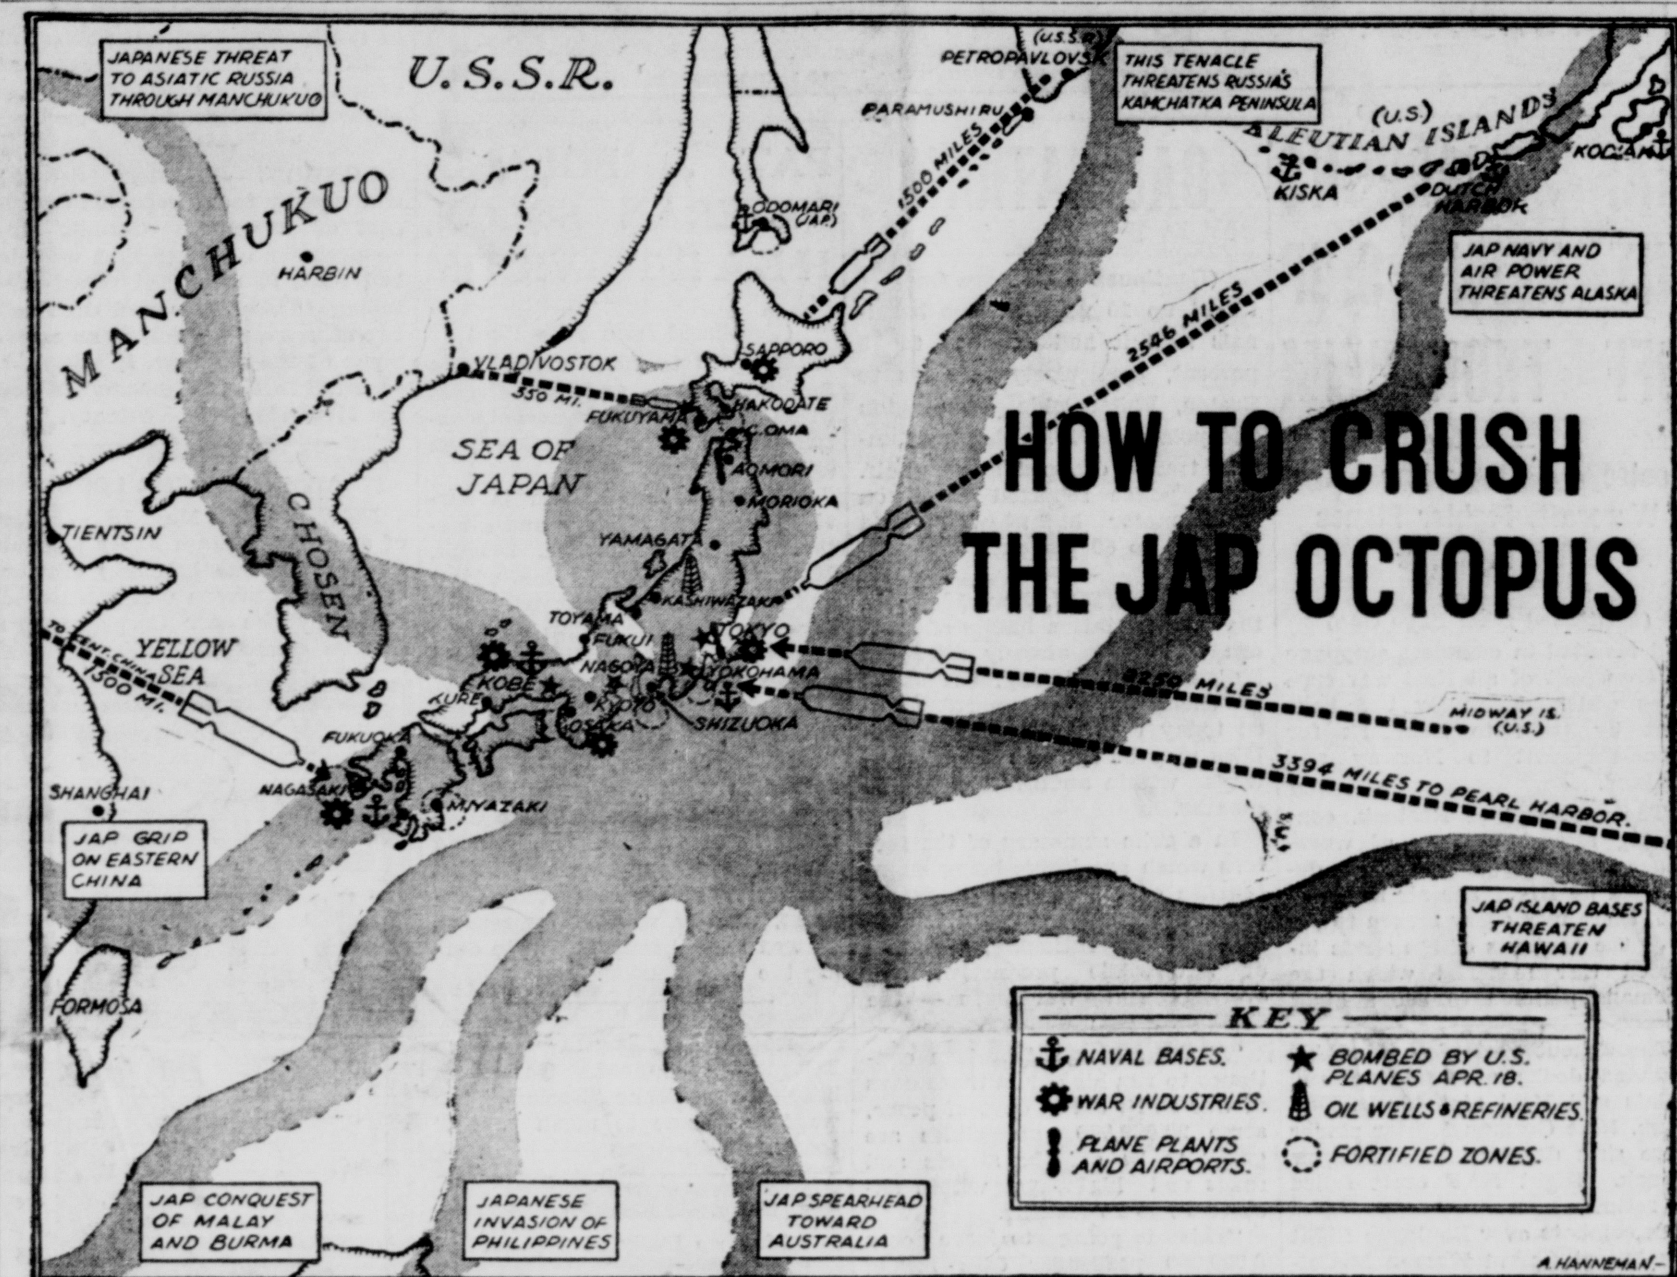

Blasts Heaviest

Residents of England's Kent coast, across from Dunkirk and Boulogne, described the explosions resulting from the crashing of British bombs as intense. The blasts, they said, were the most continuous and heaviest they had ever heard.

Air ministry, in a special announcement concerning the recent devastating British attacks on the industrial city of Rostock in Germany, said that the bombings (Continued on Page Two)

LAVAL IN PARIS FOR CONFABS

BERNE, May 18—French Chief of Government Pierre Laval now is in Paris engaged in "confidential conversations," reliable information in Berne said today.

WAR CHEST ADDS OVER MILLION AT CHICAGO PARTY

CHICAGO, May 18—America's war chest was $1,252,300 richer today as the result of a party staged last night by 693 prominent Chicagoans at one of the city's night clubs.

The food and drinks were "on the house," but there was a substantial "cover charge," as it turned out, for the party-goers subscribed for an average of more than $1,800 each in war bonds. They weren't in pledges, either.

Treasury representatives were on the spot and the guests paid over their checks then and there. Danny Kaye, musical comedy star, who originated the idea, flew in from New York to take part, and a bevy of other stars made up the show.

Among them was Bill Robinson, perennial dancing star, who auctioned off his dancing shoes to Lewis A. Weiss, one of the diners, for $30,000, which also went into the war chest.

Gov. Dwight H. Green and a number of high-ranking officers in the military service were among the notables introduced.

THIS map shows the strategy that is expected to be employed by the Allied Nations to crush the sprawling military octopus that is Japan. As soon as adequate bases and sufficient heavy bombing craft are ready, the pattern for conquering the Japs will probably follow the one set by U. S. Army bombers when they attacked the heart of the Jap empire, raining death and destruction on Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya and Kobe.

PAT J. BOLAND, VETERAN SOLON, HEART VICTIM

SCRANTON, Pa., May 18 — Congressman Patrick J. Boland, 62, Democratic whip in the House of Representatives, died today of a heart attack in his home in Scranton where he had conducted a primary election campaign for his seventh term in Congress.

Maj. Martin F. Boland, a brother, said the veteran Democratic leader had met last night with friends and was in good spirits. Mrs. Boland said that when her husband had complained of a pain at 5 a. m. she immediately called a physician but he arrived too late.

Men Deferred Because Of Heart Disorder To Receive Re-examination

COLUMBUS, May 18—A re-examination of the 10.6 percent of Selective Service registrants rejected for military service because of heart disorders is in order, Colonel Leonard G. Rowntree, chief of the medical division of the Selective Service system, advised state headquarters today.

A substantial percentage of these men, Colonel Rowntree said, may be found fit for service on re-examination. In many instances it is thought temporary factors, such as undue excitement, nervous stress and strain, caused functional derangement sufficient to

Chinese Win Upper Hand In Burma Road Struggle

NEW YORK, May 18—Chinese forces "have again seized the initiative" in China and Burma, the British radio said today.

"The aerial offensive is growing," the statement said, and Japanese positions are being "greatly damaged."

CHUNGKING, May 18—Chinese troops have completely wiped out remnants of Japanese detachments at Maliaopu and Hungmushu, north of the Burma road inside Yunnan province, it was announced officially today.

Meanwhile, Chinese forces on the Mekong river front were said to be holding strong defense positions at Mongapiliao, Monghai and Hongling, despite heavy Japanese attacks.

The Japanese have rushed large reinforcements to this front, it was stated.

Bitter fighting continues around Mongkun and Taihao on the Salween river front, the communiqué declared.

AYRES TO JOIN MEDICAL UNIT OF U. S. ARMY

CASCADE LOCKS, Ore., May 18—Lew Ayres, firm star who was sent to a work camp near Cascade Locks as a conscientious objector, will enter the Army today as a non-combatant and will probably be assigned to a medical corps.

He will report today to the draft board at Hood River, Ore., for induction.

The actor, who gave up stardom because of his convictions, said his beliefs have not changed since he was classified several months ago.

"I always have been willing to go into a medical corps," said Ayres, who rose to fame as a soldier in "All Quiet on the Western Front." "My draft board sent me to the work camp, but after I arrived I asked through another channel for non-combatant duty."

"There has been no change in my beliefs," he specified. Draft board officials forecast that the star will take a 13-week basic training course in company with other drafted men and will be assigned to a medical corps after that. He has studied first aid and organized a class at the work camp.

Gas Rations For Entire U. S. Urged

LaGuardia Says Parts Of Nation Suffer; Gotham Traffic At Low Mark

WASHINGTON, May 18 — President Roosevelt took steps today to bring about immediate construction of at least two pipelines to offset the acute oil and gasoline shortage on the eastern seaboard.

The President discussed such a possibility with congressional leaders at a lengthy White House conference, and it was announced later that government agencies involved would be ordered to make an immediate investigation of routes and the procurement of necessary materials.

NEW YORK, May 18—Nation-wide gasoline rationing was urged today by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia to release additional tank cars to transport motor fuel to the East as authorities studied the effects of New York's first Sunday of gas restriction.

The mayor said: "If we are all rationed equally there will be more transportation available for the East and other sections of the country that are undernourished now."

Motorists dwindled to a small fraction of normal yesterday in the greater metropolitan area. Parkways and highways, practically deserted during the sunny afternoon, were evidence that long trips for fun were gone for the duration.

Regardless of classification, motorists had trouble getting gas. Most of the stations in greater New York were closed.

Train and bus traffic struck an all-time high for a Sunday. Parks and beaches serviced by buses and trains were crowded. Beaches relatively distant were deserted.

'I AM AMERICAN' DAY OBSERVED THROUGH NATION

By International News Service
The nationwide observance of "I Am An American Day," proclaimed by President Roosevelt, resulted in record crowds from coast to coast pledging anew their faith in America.

New York celebrated the occasion with 1,250,000 persons jamming Central Park. Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine estimated that it was the largest crowd ever assembled, in a single compact mass, anywhere in the world.

Eighteen acres of human faces looked at Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black and repeated after him the simple Pledge of Allegiance:

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States, and to the republic for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

From everywhere reports were received of a profound embrace of the observance. New York's record through heard General Charles De Gaulle, leader of the Free French, say in a radio address from London that millions of Frenchmen place their hope of freedom in the United States.

NINE KILLED IN OHIO

By International News Service
At least nine persons lost their lives in Ohio over the week end as the result of traffic accidents, a survey showed today.

RATION STAMP NO. 2 MUST BE USED BY MAY 30

Stamp Number 1 in the war rationing book is no longer valid. All who have books are to use Stamp Number 2 before May 30.

These stamps will only be redeemed during the period for which they are listed and consumers are asked to use them as soon as possible to eliminate last minute rushes on grocers.

When Stamp Number 2 expires May 30 persons may then use Stamp Number 3 until June 13 and Stamp 4 from June 14 to June 27.

The rationing board has announced that another schedule will be set up for the remainder of the stamps, but that the periods will not reach too far into the future due to the possibility of using the stamps for other commodities as well.

first line of defense but declared that the enemy had been repulsed and Soviet forces were continuing to advance.

Some 12,000 German officers and soldiers, the communiqué said, have been killed so far in the campaign to recapture Kharkov. Already more than 300 inhabited localities have been retaken on the Kharkov front, it was said.

Timoshenko's assault was said to have resulted in the capture of 25 tanks, 188 trench mortars, 379 machine-guns and 365 field pieces. About 1,200 Nazi troops were taken prisoner, according to the communiqué.

German equipment destroyed, it was said, included 400 tanks, 210 guns, about 700 vehicles and 149 airplanes.

Cossacks in Action

The Russians reported that units of the famed Cossack cavalry were thrown into the Kharkov battle behind strong armored units "to keep the Germans moving."

Recapture of a strategic village, designated only as "M" but believed to be Mefere, 20 miles south of Kharkov, was announced by the Russians. The town was captured after an hour and a half of fierce street fighting. A large food and ammunition supply dump which the Nazis did not have time to destroy was captured by the Russians.

The battered Nazi forces were reportedly retreating in disorder as the Russian forces continue to smash through the elaborate system of anti-tank obstacles and mine fields established by the Germans. Almost all of the 375th Nazi regiment was said to have been annihilated on one sector.

Reasonable quiet obtained in the southwest Pacific war theatre, but there were indications that a burst of action may appear at any moment.

One Jap plane was shot down and two others damaged when nine Nipponese craft sought to attack the advanced United Nations base at Port Moresby, New Guinea.

Otherwise the fighting was nil. But General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia bustled with activity over the week end as the commonwealth press commented on possibility of early resumption of heavy hostilities.

Early resumption of aerial and naval warfare in the Coral sea was expected. Some quarters in Australia believed an all-out Japanese assault against the commonwealth in the very near future was inevitable. They asserted that such a thrust is vitally necessary if the Japs are to retain any control in the south Pacific.

Invasion "Imminent"

A vichy radio report said "an invasion of Australia is imminent." According to the broadcast a Japanese fleet of warships and transports "numerically superior" to those which engaged in the gigantic battle of the Coral sea is now moving toward north Australia.

In New Delhi it was disclosed that American fliers based in India had carried out a new heavy raid on the Japanese base at Myitkyina in north Burma. The American Japanese trains and troop concentrations near Laokai on the Indo-China border.

Chinese Holding

Chinese forces, according to Chungking, were holding their positions against the Japs in north-eastern Burma and inflicting heavy losses on the enemy.

There were two developments on the political side of the war. Pierre Laval, French chief of government, returned to Paris for further conferences with Nazi officials and collaborators. Premier Mussolini called a meeting of his council of Ministers at which "important decisions" reportedly will be made.

travel up 10 percent. Bus terminals said it had risen 25 to 75 percent, particularly in trips to Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and points south. Bridge and tunnel traffic dropped about half. State police reported travel on main motor highways reduced from 50 to 60 percent.

WASHINGTON, May 18—With the transportation habits of eastern motorists already disrupted by gasoline rationing, the office for emergency management warned today that 20,000,000 automobiles may be forced off the highways within another 12 to 15 months.

In a grim summary of the factors which are jeopardizing maintenance of the nation's transportation system—the rubber shortage, gasoline rationing, cessation of automobile production and ever-increasing war loads—the OEM observed:

"If the average American continues to run his car in these days of war as he did in days of peace, some 20,000,000 automobiles are going to be off the streets and roads and highways within another 12 to 15 months."

"This is going to leave only 8,000,000 passenger cars rolling in 1943."

Would Save Tires

The OEM warning served to highlight speculation that gasoline rationing might be extended nationwide, not because of a shortage of motor fuel in the inland areas, but to force conservation of the millions of tires which constitute the country's most precious stockpile of rubber.

RUSSIANS SURGE FORWARD ALONG 100-MILE FRONT

first line of defense but declared that the enemy had been repulsed and Soviet forces were continuing to advance.

Some 12,000 German officers and soldiers, the communiques said, have been killed so far in the campaign to recapture Kharkov. Already more than 300 inhabited localities have been retaken on the Kharkov front, it was said.

Timoshenko's assault was said to have resulted in the capture of 25 tanks, 188 trench mortars, 879 machine-guns and 365 field pieces. About 1,200 Nazi troops were taken prisoner, according to the communiques.

German equipment destroyed, it was said, included 400 tanks, 219 guns, about 700 vehicles and 149 airplanes.

Cossacks in Action
The Russians reported that units of the famed Cossack cavalry were thrown into the Kharkov battle behind strong armored units "to keep the Germans moving."

Recapture of a strategic village, designated only as "M," but believed to be Merefa, 20 miles south of Kharkov, was announced by the Russians. The town was captured after an hour and a half of fierce street fighting. A large food and ammunition supply dump which the Nazis did not have time to destroy was captured by the Russians.

The battered Nazi forces were reportedly retreating in disorder as the Russian forces continue to smash through the elaborate system of anti-tank obstacles and mine fields established by the Germans. Almost all of the 375th Nazi regiment was said to have been annihilated on one sector.

Reasonable quiet obtained in the southwest Pacific war theatre, but there were indications that a burst of action may appear at any moment.

One Jap plane was shot down and two others damaged when nine Japanese craft sought to attack the advanced United Nations base at Port Moresby, New Guinea.

Otherwise the fighting was nil. But General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia bustled with activity over the week end as the commonwealth press commented on possibility of early resumption of heavy hostilities.

Early resumption of aerial and naval warfare in the Coral sea was expected. Some quarters in Australia believed an all-out Japanese assault against the commonwealth in the very near future was inevitable. They asserted that such a thrust is vitally necessary if the Japs are to retain any control in the south Pacific.

Invasion "Imminent"
A vichy radio report said "an invasion of Australia is imminent." According to the broadcast a Japanese fleet of warships and transports "numerically superior" to those engaged in the gigantic battle of the Coral sea is now moving toward north Australia.

In New Delhi it was disclosed that American fliers based in India had carried out a new heavy raid on the Japanese base at Myittha in north Burma. The American Japanese trains and troop concentrations near Lashio on the Indo-China border.

Chinese Holding
Chinese forces, according to Chungking, were holding their positions against the Japs in northeastern Burma and inflicting heavy losses on the enemy.

There were two developments on the political side of the war. Pierre Laval, French chief of government, returned to Paris for further conferences with Nazi officials and collaborationists. Premier Mussolini called a meeting of his council of Ministers at which "important decisions" reportedly had been made.

DISORDERLY MAN CITED
Harry Selsor, Ashville route 1, posted $10 bond in Mayor Ben Gordon's court Monday to appear at 7 p. m. on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was arrested Saturday evening.

WOMEN READY TO AID
PENDLETON, Ore. — If there's ever a shortage of men in industry just call on Pendleton women—they're experts at almost anything. A registration of skills discovered that one woman has been boss of a lumber camp and can "drive anything on wheels." Another woman reported that she is a graduate nurse and dietitian, a former ranch manager and a good tractor driver, while still another said she was a railroad telegrapher during the last war and received a medal for her work.

LINCOLN FIELDS OPENS SEASON COMPETITION
CHICAGO, May 18—Today opened a 30-day meeting at the Lincoln Fields race track where such turf stars as Whirlaway, Alab and Shot Put first attracted public notice.

During the meeting five stakes will be presented, each carrying $5,000 in added money. Whirlaway won the first race of his career at this track as a juvenile in 1940. Shot Put won the mile and a quarter Lincoln handicap the same year and went on to win the $50,000 New York handicap at two miles and a quarter at Belmont.

Last year, Alab's first major success was in the Joliet stakes at Lincoln fields.

WAR VET INJURED IN BUS
NEW ORLEANS—Maybe it's true that "peace hath its victories no less renowned than war." Second Lieutenant Karl W. Seemann Jr., of New Orleans, wouldn't know. But Seemann is very certain that peace has its dangers. He came unscathed through all the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor. Back in the United States, he received his first injury since the war began. A 250-pound Negro woman, passing down the aisle of a bus, stepped on Seemann's ankle and broke it.

The east end of Rostock, consisting almost entirely of warehouses and storage sheds, was destroyed by fire. The air ministry said there was every reason to believe the contents of the sheds included war material which the Germans planned to use against Russia.

travel up 10 percent. Bus terminals said it had risen 25 to 75 percent, particularly in trips to Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and points south. Bridge and tunnel traffic dropped about half. State police reported travel on main motor highways reduced from 50 to 60 percent.

WASHINGTON, May 18—With the transportation habits of eastern motorists already disrupted by gasoline rationing, the office for emergency management warned today that 20,000,000 automobiles may be forced off the highways within another 12 to 15 months.

In a grim summary of the factors which are jeopardizing maintenance of the nation's transportation system—the rubber shortage, gasoline rationing, cessation of automobile production and ever-increasing war loads—the OEM observed:

"If the average American continues to run his car in these days of war as he did in days of peace, some 20,000,000 automobiles are going to be off the streets and roads and highways within another 12 to 15 months."

"This is going to leave only 8,000,000 passenger cars rolling in 1943."

Would Save Tires
The OEM warning served to highlight speculation that gasoline rationing might be extended nationwide, not because of a shortage of motor fuel in the inland areas, but to force conservation of the millions of tires which constitute the country's most precious stockpile of rubber.

CARS HIT IN FOG

Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer investigated an accident Sunday morning at 5:45 on Route 23 north of the city in which the cars of Homey Boggs, Detroit, Mich., and Cecil O'Connor, 383 Walnut street, met head-on. A heavy fog caused the collision in which no one was injured with slight damage to both cars. The drivers were traveling very slow in an effort to see through the mist thus lessening the impact of the crash.

War Effort Aided By Sales Conducted From Booth In Business District

BOY, GIRL SCOUTS HELP

Junior C. Of C. President Pleased With Success On First Day

An outstanding success was the term given Monday to the effort of the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce in selling War Bonds and War Stamps from a booth Saturday at Court and Main streets.

James Yost, president of the Jaycee organization, said that sales totalled more than $525 during the day, and would have been higher but for the lack of light in their booth. Jaycees were forced to cease operations at about 9 o'clock Saturday night when it became too dark to count money. They hope to have lights in the booth next Saturday.

Members of the organization started operations Saturday with only $25 in stamps, but early in the day learned that business would be brisk. The $25 supply was exhausted in 30 minutes.

The Jaycees were assisted by a Boy Scout and a Girl Scout troop, the youngsters competing for a $25 War bond which will be given to the youngster having the highest total of sales at the end of four weeks.

Our native youngster, Ashville school graduate, class of 1915, Mike Hagley, was Saturday elected president of the Ohio High School Coaches association. Mike has been coach and athletic director of North high school, Columbus, for the last 21 years. Mike's "boss," the former Pride Cromley, too an Ashville high graduate, and daughter of Charles and Mrs. Cromley near town. Sunday they were down home for the cats and if they did tell about the honor given them they sure have earned it and have a good reason along with the rest of us, to feel pleased over the honor received.

Headquarters Fifth Corps area has just announced that the Army signal corps is in need of radio operators and repairmen. To be eligible men must be between the ages of 18 and 45. Operators must hold either a commercial or amateur operators license or be qualified for such a license. Repairmen must be members of the Radio Manufacturers Service (RMS) or Radio Service Men of America (RSA) and at the time of application for enlistment be employed in radio service work.

Radio plays a very important part in modern warfare. Airplanes in flight and armored vehicles in motion depend almost entirely on this method of communication for directing operations, reporting observations, and relaying other important messages. Radio is used for communication between the farflung units in all parts of the world. During the siege of Bataan and Corregidor no other type of message was getting through.

All men who are qualified should contact their nearest Army recruiting office without delay and do their part to help win this war. Remember, it takes many men to keep one plane in flight or one tank in motion.

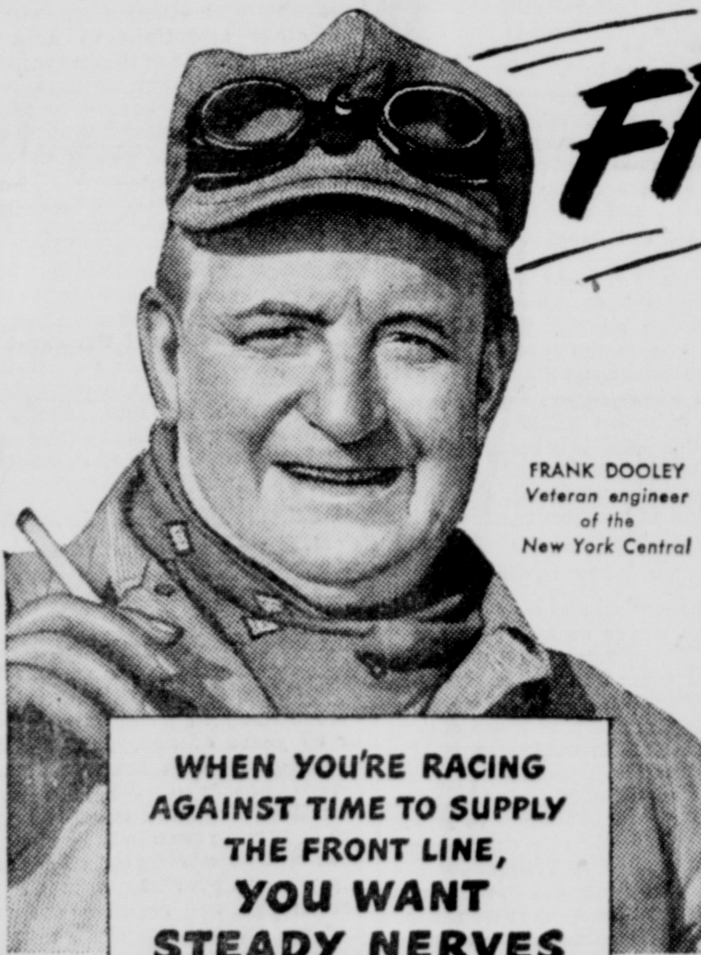

Notice has been received of the enlistment of Edwin M. Sarrey in the United States Naval Reserves. Sarrey, who has been in the employ of John Dunlap Jr., Williamsport, as a clerk, was commissioned an ensign.

Trio Wanted For Robbery Trapped Near Orient By Highway Unit

Circleville police were on the lookout early Sunday for three armed robbery suspects who had been reported in Washington C. H. and thought possibly to be traveling east on Route 22.

The men, wanted for abducting and robbing Luther F. Johnson of Dayton, were found Sunday near Orient in northern Pickaway county by state highway patrolmen and after a wild shooting episode two brothers were arrested with the third man escaping.

After a broadcast of the alarm a patrol cruiser at Orient discovered the fleeing thieves and when patrolmen overtook the car the bandits jumped out and ran.

When the commands of the officers to stop were ignored they opened fire wounding Ernest Bowles, 23, Dayton, while his brother, Frank, was forced to stop. The third man escaped and is being sought by the patrol.

Ernest Bowles was taken to Mount Carmel hospital where he is being treated for wounds on the right hip.

THREE YOUTHS DROWN AT DAM; ONE IS SAVED

Spring Offensive in Russia

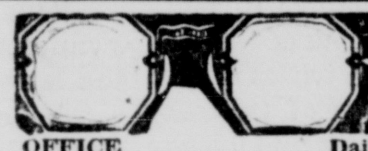

The much-talked-of Spring drive in Russia is now under way. Moscow claims great gains around the Kharkov sector (1). Germany is said to be pushing the Russian forces back on the Kerch Peninsula (2). In the Leningrad sector Red forces are advancing steadily and forcing the Nazis to battle desperately to hold their second line of defense (3).

JAYCEES SELL OVER $525 IN DEFENSE BONDS

War Effort Aided By Sales Conducted From Booth In Business District

BOY, GIRL SCOUTS HELP

Junior C. Of C. President Pleased With Success On First Day

An outstanding success was the term given Monday to the effort of the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce in selling War Bonds and War Stamps from a booth Saturday at Court and Main streets.

James Yost, president of the Jaycee organization, said that sales totaled more than $525 during the day, and would have been higher but for the lack of light in their booth. Jaycees were forced to cease operations at about 9 o'clock Saturday night when it became too dark to count money. They hope to have lights in the booth next Saturday.

Members of the organization started operations Saturday with only $25 in stamps, but early in the day learned that business would be brisk. The $25 supply was exhausted in 30 minutes. The Jaycees were assisted by a Boy Scout and a Girl Scout troop, the youngsters competing for a $25 War bond which will be given to the youngster having the highest total of sales at the end of four weeks.

ASHVILLE

These Eighth graders of Ashville, a couple of dozen or so of them, and the Duval and South Bloomfielders, same standing, are all pleased with the good prospect of being Ashville high school students at the beginning of the next school year, about September 1. Pull count not all in yet, but it's a safe guess the forty mark will be reached.

Didn't get a smidgen or anything, this high school track team of ours at Delaware last Saturday, is all a mistake. Gregg got fifth place in pole vault. Our lads did their very best and are to be praised for the effort they made. Canal Winchester placed first. And while this news may not sound so good the best part is here and now being told. Our native youngster, Ashville school graduate, class of 1915, Mike Hagely, was Saturday elected president of the Ohio High School Coaches association. Mike has been coach and athletic director of North high school, Columbus, for the last 21 years. Mike's "boss," the former Pride Cromley, too an Ashville high graduate, and daughter of Charles and Mrs. Cromley near town. Sunday they were down home for the cats and if they did tell about the honor given them they sure have earned it and have a good reason along with the rest of us, to feel pleased over the honor received.

Monday evening, both the village council and the Ashville-Harrison school board will be in session. The board along with its bill paying will be employing some teachers for the next school year, if going true to form. Commencement Thursday evening with the "last day of school" Friday.

Lawrence Shaefer, Walnut township, residing on what is known as Noecker farm, was removed Friday from his home to a Columbus hospital for an appendicitis operation. "Getting along well" is the word from there.

Lucien and Mrs. Hughes, West Main street, had for recent dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Eitel and son Charles, Columbus, and Miss Hazel Wells, Ashville.

Wade Canter, employed in an Army service depot at Memphis, Tenn., for some time, is home on furlough for a short period.

Claude Dolby, former youngster here and now employed at Columbus State hospital, was here on a short visit Friday.

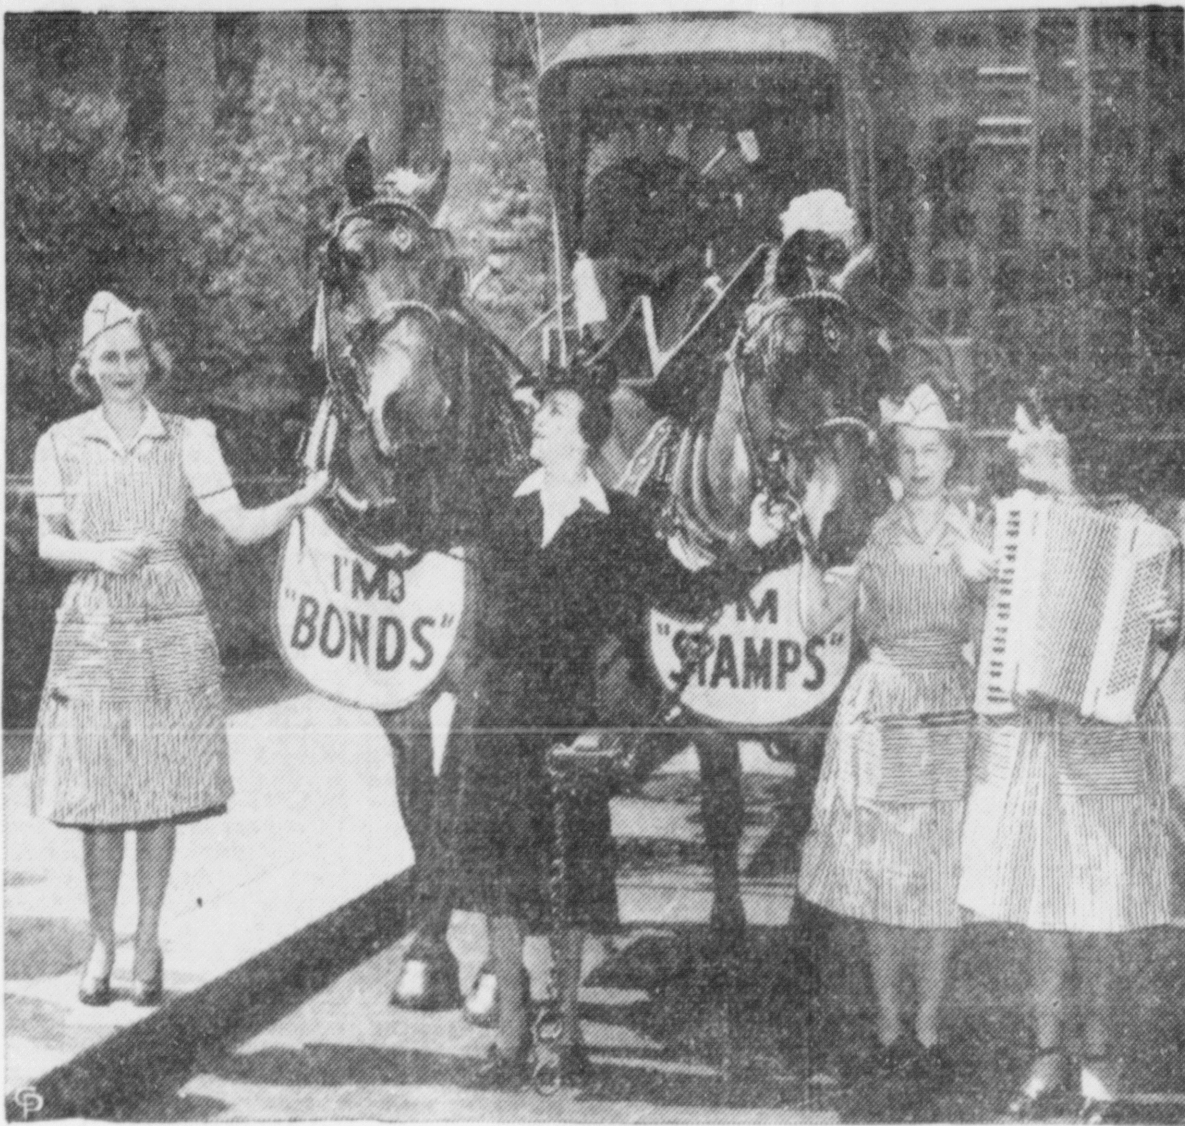

Elliott Brinker, son of Mrs. Lillie Brinker, Cromley street, is reported quite sick of pneumonia at Fort Hays hospital, Columbus.

HEALTHERS WILL ATTEND ANNUAL STATE SESSION

Three members of the health department of Circleville and Pickaway county plan to attend a convention of the Ohio Federation of Public Health officials in the Deshler-Wallick hotel, Columbus, Wednesday, May 20. Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner; Mrs. Margaret Hunsicker, county health nurse, and Mrs. Mae M. Groom, city health nurse, will attend the conference which is held each year to further health work throughout the state.

Confabs will begin at 10 a. m. and continue throughout the day with many speakers scheduled to appear before the group. In the forenoon Paul M. Holmes, Columbus, will discuss trailer camps and some of the problems they present in the civilian defense program. Mrs. Alice Smith, Cleveland, takes nutrition in public health as her topic and Carl Wilzbach, Cincinnati, the health department's role in Civilian Defense as a part of the morning schedule that will be devoted to health and Civilian Defense.

Following the luncheon, State Health Director R. H. Markwith will address the meeting and introduce the main speaker of the day who is Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Mr. O'Connor is widely known as the former law partner of President Roosevelt and the man instrumental in combating this disease in many foundations throughout the nation.

MENARD GRUBBS TRUCK VICTIM IN AKRON, OHIO

Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at 1 p. m. in Kingston for Menard L. Grubbs, 47, of Akron, who was fatally injured Friday when he was struck by a truck. Mr. Grubbs was a brother of Miss Vera Grubbs, East Franklin street.

Mr. Grubbs, a painter, lived at 277 Barder avenue, Akron.

He was standing at the rear of his automobile when a truck driven by Albert Moledor, Akron, crashed against the car. The truck pinned Grubbs against the automobile and then careened away knocking over a lamp post and mail box before coming to a stop against a building. Moledor was arrested for reckless driving.

Mr. Grubbs is survived by three sons, two daughters, his mother, his sister and two brothers.

Cadet James Boggs To Receive His Wings At Exercises

It's wings for Jimmy Boggs!

Aviation Cadet James Boggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Boggs and a former star athlete at Pickaway township high school, will receive his wings at graduation exercises Wednesday to be conducted at Turner field, Albany, Ga.

His mother and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boggs, his brother and sister-in-law, went to Albany for the week end and will remain there until the graduation ceremony.

Mrs. Lulu Shellhammer of East Ringgold has received a letter from her son, Emil. She hadn't heard from him for nearly four months, the letter revealing that he is in service in northern Ireland.

Headquarters Fifth Corps area has just announced that the Army signal corps is in need of radio operators and repairmen. To be eligible men must be between the ages of 18 and 45. Operators must hold either a commercial or amateur operators license or be qualified for such a license. Repairmen must be members of the Radio Manufacturers Service (RMS) or Radio Service Men of America (RSA) and at the time of application for enlistment be employed in radio service work.

Radio plays a very important part in modern warfare. Airplanes in flight and armored vehicles in motion depend almost entirely on this method of communication for directing operations, reporting observations, and relaying other important messages. Radio is used for communication between the farflung units in all parts of the world. During the siege of Bataan and Corregidor no other type of message was getting through.

All men who are qualified should contact their nearest Army recruiting office without delay and do their part to help win this war. Remember, it takes many men to keep one plane in flight or one tank in motion.

Notice has been received of the enlistment of Edwin M. Sarrey in the United States Naval Reserves. Sarrey, who has been in the employ of John Dunlap Jr., Williamsport, as a clerk, was commissioned an ensign.

Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Enoch, Whisler, have received a Mother's Day cablegram from their son, Private Ned Enoch, who is with the American Expeditionary Force, somewhere in Ireland.

Paul Greeno, Columbus, who entered selective service recently, is stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., where he is a member of an armored regiment. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Greeno, formerly of Circleville, and a brother of Mrs. Ralph Crist, Northridge road. Eugene Greeno, his brother, is now in Army service in Hawaii.

Carl Stanley Griffey, Circleville, is with the U. S. Navy at the training station at San Diego, Cal., where he is a member of Co. 42-153. Young Griffey is the son of Abner Griffey of East Ohio street.

PERFECT GENTEEL COOK

ONE OF the great mysteries of the epic voyage of the U. S. Cruiser Marblehead home around most of the world had to do with the Chinese cook. In all the grime and oil and water, in all the fire and smoke and soot, with the galley destroyed and no getting any sleep to speak of, hot coffee miraculously appeared when most needed. Meals were served by an immaculate Fook Liang, in clean and beautiful clothing. How he did it and where he kept the clean clothes in all that mess, no one could imagine. It seemed as miraculous to the men, sleepless, unwashed, unshaven, the captain steering with no rudder, the men shoring mattresses against gaping sides, the bucket brigade passing bailing buckets for two solid days, as any of these other wonders. But he did it, to the eternal gratitude of all he served.

It couldn't be that any American would growl about having one less cup of coffee, could it? Or less sugar?

In case of petty temptations to petty complaints, let Americans think of the men of the Marblehead and take trifles with a smile. Let the Fook Liangs of this war have the coffee—and the sugar, too. They know what to do with it.

UNITED STATES?

ONE question was supposed to be settled long ago; is this one country or 48? Also, does not the constitution forbid trade barriers between states? These barriers exist today, constitution or no constitution. In many ways, if we are the United States, the accent is now on the States and not on the United.

The war brings all this to a head. Not to pick unduly on any particular states, Arizona and New Mexico forbid the entry of freight trains with more than 70 cars. Longer trains must stop at the border and be broken up. Hundreds of extra trains have lately been required by this regulation, causing delay for vital war supplies. There may once have been a reason for this rule in high altitudes, but the railroads say that in an emergency they could now handle trains with as many as 150 cars apiece.

Nearly all states have special motor truck regulations which interfere with and sometimes prevent the entry of truck freight. Seven states forbid labor and industry on Sunday. Unfortunately the Mikado has laid down no such law for Japan.

Donald Nelson is trying to knock these barriers down. It is no time for local interests to feather their nests at the expense of soldiers and sailors.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

BEING a United States senator or representative has its compensations.

The national lawmakers can get all the gas they want to run their automobiles. Federal Fixer Lecon Henderson's office says they're not necessarily entitled to it in unlimited doses, but it takes a pretty nifty functionary to refuse an X-card to so potent an individual as a congressman when he submits his demand.

National Capitol

The OPAS theory is that even one of Uncle Sam's legislators has an X-classification properly coming to him only to the extent to which he uses his car on governmental errands—not on trips between his boarding place and the Capitol, like any other workingman; not for shopping around; certainly not for pleasure jaunts into the country on his days off. If he says they're all one and the same thing, though, what's the issuing clerk to do about it? Tell such a mogul as a congressman, like an ordinary person, that his words doubted? Scarcely!

Anyway, more than 200 X's were issued to the Capitol Hill contingent on the first registration day. That was quite a chunk out of the bunch's 531 total, and it's to be borne in mind that not half of 'em all were applicants, quite a soon. If a single one was turned down, I haven't heard of him, and I'll bet I would, if there'd been one, he'd have made an issue of it on the house or senate floor. Besides the X-guaranteed congressmen, most of their wives got a three-gallon allowance each.

Bomb Worries
Incidentally, congress is jittery concerning the possibility of air bombings of the Capitol building, while it is in session belowstairs. It recently voted between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 to make its roofs explosion proof.

The houses may have to find temporary quarters within which to legislate while the work's going on, but, if possible, they hope they can adjourn for a couple of months—nominally while being fortified, really to give 'em time to campaign for re-election prior to the November test at the polls. Of course (parenthetically), it's going to be quite a wartime, non-partisan affair—but naturally the rival candidates all want to win.

Speaking of the danger of air raids over the Capitol building is reminiscent of blackouts, of which Washington's had its practice epidemics recently. To most folk they're a nuisance. Yet, a few evenings ago, I was chased by one of 'em into a little dive I occasionally frequent, very temporarily, on my way home. Said the proprietor an old friend of mine. "Thank heaven for these blackouts. They drive all the taxicabmen and miscellaneous bums into my dump and lookit the money I make out of 'em!"

It's curious to compare the early stages of this war with the early stages of the last one.

Then the whole screech was for the suppression of alcohol. Now soft drinks are at a discount. Hard liquor's perfectly available, except maybe in a few prohibition states, and I've my doubts concerning those. But soft stuff's rationed darned strictly.

Reducing Our Standard
But what Wick says is that we'll have to "reduce our standard of living."

Now, it isn't so long since an INCREASE in our standard of living was what our then administration was promising us.

It's funny to hear that we've got to REDUCE. Some of the English, we're warned, have been reduced to eating cooked grass. What I'm talking about is rationing—all the way down from gas and rubber and groceries in general to grass. "Enough to eat," says Secretary Wickard. "Yes, enough to eat," Grass. It seems to be that kind of a war.

What's seen as a hopeful sign is that the Axis presently won't have even enough grass to eat.

"Never mind," warns Psychology Professor J. L. Benson of Washington and Lee University. "Our problem isn't to figure out schemes for protecting OURSELVES! It's how to defeat the enemy."

If we lick 'em, let's eat grass or any, old thing.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

CONGRESS IN FRYING PAN

WASHINGTON — Even Washington, where congressional boodling is an old story, was startled when some 300 senators and representatives took "X" rationing cards giving them an unlimited supply of gasoline.

The Capital well knows that few members of Congress have sufficient "official business" to warrant an "X" rating. Also, after the way the boys got their fingers burned in the attempted crude "bundles for Congress" pension grab, it was thought they had learned their lesson—for this session at least.

But it seems they haven't, for the gas grab is only part of the rationing ducking story.

OPA has said nothing about it, but the inside fact is that a number of the congressional statesmen have privately demanded that the drastic tire restrictions be lifted for them so that they can get tires for campaigning purposes.

Further, none of these politicians said anything about extending such a concession to their opponents. They want tires for themselves, but their rivals must abide by the regulations without any special favors.

So far OPA has turned a deaf ear to the tire demand.

Note: One reason why "X" cards were dishd out so freely on Capitol Hill was that a number of congressional wives acted as registrars.

FAST THINKER

Popular pastime at Selective Service is swapping stories about draftees. Here is the latest making the rounds:

A prospective draftee was taking his physical examination and the doctor directed him to "look at the chart on the wall and tell me what numbers you see." "What wall?" asked the draftee blankly.

After looking him over a few minutes the doctor told the registree the Army couldn't use him. He put on his clothes and departed. But on the way home, he stopped off to see a movie. When the lights went on at intermission, he was startled to find the examining physician seated beside him.

But the draftee was equal to the occasion. Nudging the doctor he asked innocently, "Can you tell me if this is the bus to Alexandria?"

NEW SHIPPING BOSS?

Lewis Douglas, early New Deal Budget Director who broke with the President over the economy issue, is a good bet for War Shipping Administrator to replace Admiral Emory Land.

Land is also chairman of the Maritime Commission and it is felt that the two jobs are too much for one man to handle. The direction of the loading and routing of cargo ships has been under hot inner circle fire for months and top war chiefs recently reported to the President that this is the (Continued on Page Eight)

DIET AND HEALTH

Cases of Diabetes Fall Into Various Classes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I AM IN receipt of a letter from a lady who asks the following questions: "Is diabetes entirely hereditary or is it brought on by other causes? How can it be guarded against—through diet or medicine or exercise?"

The question of whether diabetes is hereditary or not is highly debatable, but what this letter writer does not recognize is that there are two distinct classes of diabetes. The cause of diabetes is inability to burn starches and sugars in the body, and the reason for this inability is entirely in the lack of the formation of a substance that is naturally formed in the body called insulin. Insulin is formed from certain cells in the pancreas, and when these degenerate for any reason, diabetes results.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

One class of cases in which these cells degenerate occurs in children and young adults. The cause of this degeneration is not known. It may be infectious disease or some poison which enters the body and has a selective affinity for these cells and completely destroys them. That, at least, is the only explanation we have now and, obviously, this kind of diabetes is not hereditary at all.

Severe When in Children
This form of diabetes occurs in children where no other members of the family have diabetes and none of them develop it later. It is, incidentally, a very severe form of diabetes which is more severe than that which occurs in middle aged people.

The other kind of diabetes is far more frequent. It tends to affect people in middle age or in early senility, and is so frequently accompanied by changes in the small arteries of the body that we rather assume the condition is due to a strangulation of the cells of the pancreas which produce insulin—strangulation by closure of the small arteries which supply them.

The change may or may not be accompanied by high blood pressure. It is about fifty-fifty. Half the cases have high blood pressure and half have normal or low blood pressure. But the changes in the arteries are probably there just the same because we find in these cases changes in the arteries of the eye and of the toes and extremities.

Heredity Questionable
Now if we are right in assuming that hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure are hereditary, this group of cases is hereditary, but since the first proposition is debatable, the second proposition is also debatable. There is no use worrying about whether diabetes is hereditary or not, because nothing can be done about it anyway.

I can answer the last question in the letter by saying that there is no way that I know of to prevent diabetes with either diet, exercise or other attention to personal hygiene. It is true that a majority of the cases occur in those who have previously been overweight (I mean in the second group) and while I cannot personally see any relationship between the overweight and the diabetes, if any body wants to take advantage of this knowledge, he should keep his weight within normal limits. There doesn't seem to be any connection between the eating of a high sugar and starch diet and the onset of diabetes. While it is true it is a condition in which the physiology of the starches and sugars is changed, any person can take care of an almost unlimited amount of starch until diabetes itself sets in.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
M. H.—Will you please explain to me what acute glaucoma eye disease is caused from and how to treat it?

Answer: Acute glaucoma is due to an increase in the tension of the fluid inside the eye ball which occurs usually in people around 40 or 50 years of age. Acute glaucoma comes on suddenly with very severe headache, dizziness and vomiting. The pain is referred to the head more than to the eye. Any such episode coming out of a clear sky without previous attacks in a person this age requires the immediate attention of the best oculist available as the condition is very serious.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

IF STEENA had referred to Tibby and Wayne, as well as to Marg and her captain, when she said that the best intentions in the world could be misconstrued, and the most platonic relationship be mistaken for a love affair, she let it pass without any further comment, just as she had let Tibby's brief statement that Wayne had taken her to the aviation ball pass, too—at least on the surface.

Whether Steena really meant to let this pass without doing anything about it remained to be seen. She also had accepted the explanation that Tibby had surmised she would find—that Wayne only had invited Tibby as second choice because Steena had not been on hand. Steena had been disappointed in the charter trip. She said that movie stars were not as glamorous, close by, as she had expected. Clark Gable, of course, had been very nice, but Robert Taylor had not been on the flight, and the young starlet had been decidedly snooty, which Steena could not forgive, especially since, when it came to looks, Steena knew she had her topped.

She did not see why Wayne had sent her on that flight. She meant to tell him that she would have enjoyed more going to the ball with him. She was more than a little annoyed with Wayne. She meant to let him know that, too. Maybe the time had come to do something to wake Wayne up. They could not go on indefinitely just as they were, with nothing more definite between them than an occasional good night kiss.

Steena was determined to have things on a much more permanent and satisfactory basis than that. That may have been why she did what she did the night Tibby's young doctor phoned to say he was coming out. Steena told him to come ahead, that she would deliver his message to Tibby, although she knew that Tibby would not be at home because she was on duty and would not be back until the following morning. Maybe this was Steena's way of evening the score for Tibby's having got to go to the dance. It certainly was not fair that Tibby should have gone, when Steena couldn't. And Steena had warned Tibby not to become that friendly with Wayne Courtright.

Tommy was distinctly disappointed when he found that Tibby was not home. Anyone could see that by the way his face fell, almost literally, the corners of his usually grinning mouth drooping, the glint of expectation snapping off in his nice blue eyes. He looked as if cold water had been thrown in his face, especially as Steena left him with the impression that she had delivered his message and that Tibby had deliberately ignored it and absented herself.

"Have you any idea where she is?" Tommy asked. It was a dirty trick, Tib's standing him up, but he supposed she was getting even with him for having done practically the same thing, although he had not been able to help himself last week. This did not make him feel any more light hearted, for Tommy had felt exactly the opposite of that ever since the night when Tibby, a vision in white, had smiled on him in that tantalizing fashion, informing him that she was not going out alone, and had gone out, still looking so mysterious, leaving him more alone than he ever had felt before in his very full and crowded life.

"No, I don't know where Tibby is—exactly," Steena replied now, truthfully enough, for Tibby was somewhere up in the air at this moment, headed for Kansas City. "Won't you come in, anyway, Tommy? I'm all alone."

Naturally that appealed to Tommy, since he felt pretty much alone again, too. Maybe Tib would get over her peeve and come home before he left. No doubt she was just giving him a dose of his own medicine. If she knew how effective it was she would have come right away, for young Dr. Tommy Dare had been practically a sick man since that night he had found out that Tibby was stepping out with someone else, looking the way she had.

He had never dreamed that Tibby could look like that—like an angel, like a queen, like something a man dreams about, but never realizes. Tommy saw now he had been a dub, taking Tibby and the way she could look for granted. He had known, of course, that she was the girl for him, since he always had taken that for granted, too, but he had not realized—until that night—that he could not LIVE without her, that she was the most important dream in his whole world.

Steena said, "I'm glad to have this opportunity to talk with you—alone." She gave him one of her dazzling smiles, but in Tommy's present state, it did not even make him blink. Steena looked every bit as beautiful tonight in a black velvet hostess gown with a wide gold girdle, for she had been prepared for Tommy, if Tibby had not, as she had the first time when he had blinked at the sight of her in her black creation. That proved that Tommy was, indeed, a sick man.

Tommy said, "Yes?" politely enough, yet indifferently. For he was thinking that he must talk with Tib—alone—just as soon as he could. He MUST talk with her; he couldn't go on, in this dreadful uncertainty, with all these petty misunderstandings and quarrels between them. Why, he hadn't had any appetite or a decent night's sleep, since that night Tib had looked so ethereal and treated him so coolly! If it had been the old Tib, whom he thought he knew so well, he would have thought she was putting on an act, but now he realized, grimly, that maybe he did not know her so well, after all.

"Yes," Steena said. She did not know exactly how she was going to handle all this—even this talk with Tommy—but she had made up her mind to do some handling some way. The methods were not so important. Steena was among those who believed that almost anything was fair in love, as it was in war. And she was in love with Wayne Courtright—or at least she intended to marry him, which was practically the same thing. And Tommy was in love with Tibby—or supposed to be, since they had grown up together and some men were like that, faithful to their childhood sweethearts and ideals, although such faithfulness was silly in Steena's estimation.

"You remember the bargain we made?" Steena asked.

"Bargain?" Tommy seemed to be up in the air, too, but he came down to earth—or rather back where he actually was, talking with Steena while waiting for Tib—with a thud. "Oh, sure. I remember—why?"

"Well," Steena smiled on him again. "I think it time we put it into effect. I need your masculine shoulder to lean on. You remember, I hope, offering it so valiantly?" She gave a low little laugh. "At the same time I can help you."

"Lean ahead," Tommy said, since he had to live up to that "valiant" bestowal upon him.

"I want you to help me make someone jealous," Steena told him, deciding that the best method, to come right out with it. "At the same time you can make Tibby react in the same way. A girl is never certain how much she cares for a man until she sees him paying attention to another girl. Sometimes it takes the same sort of awakening to make a man wake up, too."

That sounded reasonable to Tommy. He would like to do something to shake Tibby up, make her realize she could not go on treating him this way. Then when he proposed again she would realize she couldn't say they should go on just as they were forever and ever. He supposed the guy Steena wanted to wake up was that Courtright lug. Tommy would not mind helping with that, either. He had not taken much of a liking to him.

"Okay by me," Tommy said, although he did not know how they would go about all this complicated business. "Only you'll have to tell me what to do."

Steena laughed again. "Don't worry," she said. "Just leave everything to me. I'll tell you what to do all right."

It was working out as she had foreseen; she and Tommy would be able to help each other.

For Monday, May 18

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of sensational opportunity to grasp large things in a big way, and in connection with major interests or organizations, if the background, preparedness and stability of mind and character are fitted to meet such worthwhile openings. But there may be an element of suddenness and surprise and may bewilder.

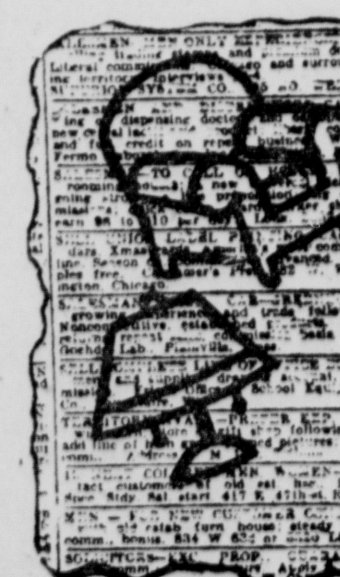

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy the presentation of a spec-

PERFECT GENTEEL COOK

ONE OF the great mysteries of the epic voyage of the U. S. Cruiser Marblehead home around most of the world had to do with the Chinese cook. In all the grime and oil and water, in all the fire and smoke and soot, with the galley destroyed and no getting any sleep to speak of, hot coffee miraculously appeared when most needed. Meals were served by an immaculate Fook Liang, in clean and beautiful clothing. How he did it and where he kept the clean clothes in all that mess, no one could imagine. It seemed as miraculous to the men, sleepless, unwashed, unshaven, the captain steering with no rudder, the men shoring mattresses against gaping sides, the bucket brigade passing bailing buckets for two solid days, as any of these other wonders. But he did it, to the eternal gratitude of all he served.

It couldn't be that any American would growl about having one less cup of coffee, could it? Or less sugar?

In case of petty temptations to petty complaints, let Americans think of the men of the Marblehead and take trifles with a smile. Let the Fook Liangs of this war have the coffee—and the sugar, too. They know what to do with it.

UNITED STATES?

ONE question was supposed to be settled long ago: is this one country or 48? Also, does not the constitution forbid trade barriers between states? These barriers exist today, constitution or no constitution. In many ways, if we are the United States, the accent is now on the States and not on the United.

The war brings all this to a head. Not to pick unduly on any particular states, Arizona and New Mexico forbid the entry of freight trains with more than 70 cars. Longer trains must stop at the border and be broken up. Hundreds of extra trains have lately been required by this regulation, causing delay for vital war supplies. There may once have been a reason for this rule in high altitudes, but the railroads say that in an emergency they could now handle trains with as many as 150 cars apiece.

Nearly all states have special motor truck regulations which interfere with and sometimes prevent the entry of truck freight. Seven states forbid labor and industry on Sunday. Unfortunately the Mikado has laid down no such law for Japan.

Donald Nelson is trying to knock these barriers down. It is no time for local interests to feather their nests at the expense of soldiers and sailors.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

BEING a United States senator or representative has its compensations.

The national lawmakers can get all the gas they want to run their automobiles. Federal Price Fixer Leon Henderson's office says they're not necessarily entitled to it in unlimited doses, but it takes a pretty nifty secretary to refuse an X-card to so potent an individual as a congressman when he submits his demand.

National Capitol demand

The OPAS theory is that even one of Uncle Sam's legislators has an X-classification properly coming to him only to the extent to which he uses his car on governmental errands—not on trips between his boarding place and the Capitol, like any other workman; not for shopping around, certainly not for pleasure jaunts into the country on his days off. If he says they're all one and the same thing, though, what's the issuing clerk to do about it? Tell such a mogul as a congressman, like an ordinary person, that his words are doubted? Scarcely!

Anyway, more than 200 X's were issued to the Capitol Hill contingent on the first registration day. That was quite a chunk out of the bunch's $51 total, and it's to be borne in mind that not half of 'em all were applicants, quite that soon. If a single one was turned down, I haven't heard of him, and I'll bet I would, if there'd been one, he'd have made an issue of it on the house or senate floor. Besides the X-guaranteed congressman, most of their wives got a three-gallon allowance each.

Bomb Worries

Incidentally, congress is jittery concerning the possibility of air bombings of the Capitol building, while it is in session belowstairs. It recently voted between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 to make its roofs explosion proof.

The houses may have to find temporary quarters within which to legislate while the work's going on but, if possible, they hope they can adjourn for a couple of months—nominally while being fortified, really to give 'em time to campaign for re-election prior to the November test at the polls.

Of course (parenthetically), it's going to be quite a wartime, non-partisan affair—but naturally the rival candidates all want to win.

Speaking of the danger of air raids over the Capitol building is reminding of blackouts of which Washington's had its practice epidemics recently. To most folk they're a nuisance. Yet a few evenings ago, I was chased by one of 'em into a little dark, occasionally frequent, very temporarily on my way home. Said the proprietor, an old friend of mine, "Thank heaven for these blackouts. They drive all the taxicabmen and miscellaneous bums into my dump and lookin' the money make out of 'em."

It's curious to compare the early stages of this war with the early stages of the last one.

Then the whole screech was for the suppression of alcohol. Now soft drinks are at a discount. Hard liquor's perfectly available except maybe in a few prohibition states, and I've my doubts concerning those. But soft stuff's rationed strictly.

We'll have enough (waiving drinks) in our standard of living to eat, according to Agriculture Secretary Claude R. Wickard.

Reducing Our Standard

But what Wick says is that we'll have to "reduce our standard of living."

Now it isn't so long since an INCREASE in our standard of living was what our then administration was promising us.

It's funny to hear that we've got to REDUCE.

Some of the English, we're warned, have been reduced to eating cooked grass.

What I'm talking about is rationing—all the way down from gas and rubber and groceries in general to grass.

"Enough to eat!" says Secretary Wickard.

Yes, enough to eat. Grass.

It seems to be that kind of a war.

What's seen as a hopeful sign is that the Axis presently won't have even enough grass to eat.

"Never mind," warns Psychology Professor J. L. Berson of Washington and Lee University. "Our problem isn't to figure out schemes for protecting OURSELVES. It's how to defeat the enemy."

If we lick 'em, let's eat grass or any, old thing.

DIET AND HEALTH

Cases of Diabetes Fall Into Various Classes

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I AM IN receipt of a letter from a lady who asks the following questions: "Is diabetes entirely hereditary or is it brought on by other causes? How can it be guarded against—through diet or medicine or exercise?"

The question of whether diabetes is hereditary or not is highly debatable, but what this letter writer does not recognize is that there are two distinct classes of diabetes. The cause of diabetes is inability to burn starches and sugars in the body, and the reason for this inability is entirely in the lack of the formation of a substance that is naturally formed in the body called insulin. Insulin is formed from certain cells in the pancreas, and when these degenerate for any reason, diabetes results.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

One class of cases in which these cells degenerate occurs in children and young adults. The cause of this degeneration is not known. It may be infectious disease or some poison which enters the body and has a selective affinity for these cells and completely destroys them. That, at least, is the only explanation we have now and, obviously, this kind of diabetes is not hereditary at all.

Severe When in Children

This form of diabetes occurs in children where no other members of the family have diabetes and none of them develop it later. It is, incidentally, a very severe form of diabetes which is more severe than that which occurs in middle aged people.

The other kind of diabetes is far more frequent. It tends to affect people in middle age or in early senility, and is so frequently accompanied by changes in the small arteries of the body that we rather assume the condition is due to a stricture of the cells of the pancreas which produce insulin—stricture which supply the small arteries which supply the pancreas. The change may or may not be accompanied by high blood pressure. It is about fifty-fifty. Half the cases have high blood pressure and half have normal or low blood pressure. But the changes in the arteries are probably there just the same because we find in these cases changes in the arteries of the eyes and of the toes and extremities.

Hereditary Questionable

Now if we are right in assuming that hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure are hereditary, this group of cases is hereditary, but since the first proposition is debatable, the second proposition is also debatable. There is no use worrying about whether diabetes is hereditary or not, because nothing can be done about it anyway.

I can answer the last question in the letter by saying that there is no way that I know of to prevent diabetes with either diet, exercise or other attentions to personal hygiene. It is true that a majority of the cases occur in those who have previously been overweight (I mean in the second group) and while I cannot personally see any relationship between the overweight and the diabetes, if anybody wants to take advantage of this knowledge, he should keep his weight within normal limits. There doesn't seem to be any connection between the eating of a high sugar and starch diet and the onset of diabetes. While it is true it is a condition in which the physiology of the starches and sugars is changed, any person can take care of an almost unlimited amount of starch until diabetes itself sets in.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. H.:—Will you please explain to me what acute glaucoma eye disease is caused from and how to treat it?

Answer: Acute glaucoma is due to an increase in the tension of the fluid inside the eye ball which occurs usually in people around 40 or 50 years of age. Acute glaucoma comes on suddenly with very severe headache, dizziness and vomiting. The pain is referred to the head more than to the eye. Any such episode coming out of a clear sky without previous attacks in a person this age requires the immediate attention of the best oculist available as the condition is very serious.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

IF STEENA had referred to Tibby and Wayne, as well as to Marg and her captain, when she said that the best intentions in the world could be misconstrued, and the most platonic relationship be mistaken for a love affair, she let it pass without any further comment, just as she had let Tibby's brief statement that Wayne had taken her to the aviation ball pass, too—at least on the surface.

Whether Steena really meant to let this pass without doing anything about it remained to be seen. She also had accepted the explanation that Tibby had surmised she would find—that Wayne only had invited Tibby as second choice because Steena had not been on hand. Steena had been disappointed in the charter trip. She said that movie stars were not as glamorous, close by, as she had expected. Clark Gable, of course, had been very nice, but Robert Taylor had not been on the flight, and the young starlet had been decidedly snooty, which Steena could not forgive, especially since, when it came to looks, Steena knew she had her topped.

She did not see why Wayne had sent her on that flight. She meant to tell him that she would have enjoyed much more going to the ball with him. She was more than a little annoyed with Wayne. She meant to let him know that, too. Maybe the time had come to do something to wake Wayne up. They could not go on indefinitely just as they were, with nothing more definite between them than an occasional good night kiss. Steena was determined to have things on a much more permanent and satisfactory basis than that.

That may have been why she did what she did the night Tibby's young doctor phoned to say he was coming out. Steena told him to come ahead, that she would deliver his message to Tibby, although she knew that Tibby would not be at home because she was on duty and would not be back until the following morning. Maybe this was Steena's way of evening the score for Tibby's having got to go to the dance. It certainly was not fair that Tibby should have gone, when Steena couldn't. And Steena had warned Tibby not to become that friendly with Wayne Courtwright.

Tommy was distinctly disappointed when he found that Tibby was not home. Anyone could see that by the way his face fell, almost literally, the corners of his usually grinning mouth drooping, the glint of expectation snapping off in his blue eyes. He looked as if cold water had been thrown in his face, especially as Steena left him with the impression that she had delivered his message and that Tibby had deliberately ignored it and absented herself.

"Have you any idea where she is?" Tommy asked. It was a dirty trick, Tibby's standing him up, but he supposed she was getting even with him for having done practically the same thing, although he had not been able to help himself last week. This did not make him feel any more light hearted, for Tommy had felt exactly the opposite of that ever since the night when Tibby, a vision in white, had smiled on him in that tantalizing fashion, informing him that she was not going out alone, and had gone out, still looking so mysterious, leaving him more alone than he ever had felt before in his very full and crowded life.

"No, I don't know where Tibby is—exactly," Steena replied now, truthfully enough, for Tibby was somewhere up in the air at this moment, headed for Kansas City. "Won't you come in, anyway, Tommy? I'm all alone."

Naturally that appealed to Tommy, since he felt pretty much alone again, too. Maybe Tibby would get over her peeve and come home before he left. No doubt she was just giving him a dose of his own medicine. If she knew how effective it was she would have come right away, for young Dr. Tommy Dare had been practically a sick man since that night he had found out that Tibby was stepping out with someone else, looking the way she had.

He had never dreamed that Tibby could look like that—like an angel, like a queen, like something a man dreams about, but never realizes. Tommy saw now he had been a dub, taking Tibby and the way she could look for granted. He had known, of course, that she was the girl for him, since he always had taken that for granted, too, but he had not realized—until that night—that he could not LIVE without her, that she was the most important dream in his whole world.

Steena said, "I'm glad to have this opportunity to talk with you—alone." She gave him one of her dazzling smiles, but in Tommy's present state, it did not even make him blink. Steena looked every bit as beautiful tonight in a black velvet hostess gown with a wide gold girdle, for she had been prepared for Tommy, if Tibby had not, as she had the first time when he had blinked at the sight of her in her gold creation. That proved that Tommy was, indeed, a sick man.

Tommy said, "Yes?" politely enough, yet indifferently. For he was thinking that he must talk with Tibby—alone—just as soon as he could. He MUST talk with her; he couldn't go on, in this dreadful uncertainty, with all these petty misunderstandings and quarrels between them. Why, he hadn't had any appetite or a decent night's sleep, since that night Tib had looked so ethereal and treated him so coolly! If it had been the old Tib, as Tibby standing him up, but he supposed she was getting even with him for having done practically the same thing, although he had not been able to help himself last week. This did not make him feel any more light hearted, for Tommy had felt exactly the opposite of that ever since the night when Tibby, a vision in white, had smiled on him in that tantalizing fashion, informing him that she was not going out alone, and had gone out, still looking so mysterious, leaving him more alone than he ever had felt before in his very full and crowded life.

"No, I don't know where Tibby is—exactly," Steena replied now, truthfully enough, for Tibby was somewhere up in the air at this moment, headed for Kansas City. "Won't you come in, anyway, Tommy? I'm all alone."

Naturally that appealed to Tommy, since he felt pretty much alone again, too. Maybe Tibby would get over her peeve and come home before he left. No doubt she was just giving him a dose of his own medicine. If she knew how effective it was she would have come right away, for young Dr. Tommy Dare had been practically a sick man since that night he had found out that Tibby was stepping out with someone else, looking the way she had.

He had never dreamed that Tibby could look like that—like an angel, like a queen, like something a man dreams about, but never realizes. Tommy saw now he had been a dub, taking Tibby and the way she could look for granted. He had known, of course, that she was the girl for him, since he always had taken that for granted, too, but he had not realized—until that night—that he could not LIVE without her, that she was the most important dream in his whole world.

Roundworms can cause real distress! And nowadays, thousands have this nasty ailment without even knowing what is wrong. So, watch for such warning signs as nose picking, "finicky" appetite, nervousness, uneasy stomach, itching parts. Use JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE to drive out roundworms before they can "get set" and make trouble. JAYNE'S is America's leading proprietary worm medicine; scientifically tested and used by millions for over a century. It acts very gently, yet drives out stubborn worms. When no worms are there, JAYNE'S is just a mild laxative. Be sure you get JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE!

Hints On The Use And Care Of Your Washer

You can save washing time by: (1) sorting the clothes; (2) soaking very soiled clothes a short time (half hour is long enough) in warm, soapy water; (3) use a good water softener if water conditions necessitate it; (4) use the proper quantity of soap or soap powder; (5) remove stains before washing.

Remember wringer rolls are hard to get these days. Take care of the ones you have: do not overload; do not put buckles, etc. through them; clean and dry them good and release the pressure when you are finished.

Feminine Clothes Become Simpler, but Still Attractive

An estimated 15 per cent of cloth consumption will be saved by the new WPB orders restricting the frills and lengths of women's clothes, but the new outfits, while simpler, still will be very feminine and attractive. Shown above are three examples of the old styles and the way they will look in the future. In the rayon slacks suit, left, the wide cuffs, balloon sleeves and sash have been eliminated, 1 1/2 yards of material being saved. The same amount of material has been saved in the dress, center, with a slightly shorter length, 20 inches less sweep, two-inch hem, narrower belt and cuffless sleeves. In the woolen suit, right, patch pockets are simulated in the new model, the skirt sweep has been reduced from 76 to 58 1/2 inches and the jacket has been shortened by two inches.

CHUCK WIGGINS, ONCE TOP RING THREAT, IS DEAD

INDIANAPOLIS, May 18—Chuck Wiggins, gay and colorful prizefighter of former years, was dead today at the age of 44, victim of fractured skull which he suffered in a fall down a stairway.

Wiggins in his prime was regarded as of potential heavyweight championship caliber, but refused to take his training seriously and was a familiar figure in night spots and taverns, often right up to the eve of an important ring engagement.

The former fighter was found unconscious on the street near the foot of a stairway last Saturday by a taxicab driver. He failed to rally and died yesterday in a hospital.

He was Gene Tunney's chief sparring mate at a training camp near Chicago when the then world champion was preparing for a return engagement with Jack Dempsey from which he had wrested the title at Philadelphia. Wiggins swapped punch for punch with Tunney and the champ was free to cut loose with all he had in getting ready for the tough rematch with the hard-slugging Dempsey.

Wiggins began fighting in 1919 and within a few years was offering to take on anyone, either in the light heavyweight or heavyweight division. He fared better, however, in the lighter division, but often was a trial horse for the heavies on their way up to the top. In the '30s he made a successful tour of Australia.

SARRINGHAUS, FEKETE ACES IN BUCKEYE FRAY

COLUMBUS, May 18 — Coach Paul E. Brown of Ohio State university looked back today with satisfaction on the annual Spring clinic game Saturday which resulted in a 20-6 triumph for the Reds (first and fourth teams).

With Paul Sarringhaus, the Hamilton hurricane, in the drivers seat for the Scarlet-clad conquerors by virtue of his high percentage of pass completions, along with Findlay's line-bucking Gene Fekete, the Reds had an easy time of it throughout the afternoon, amassing 26 of the points in the first two stanzas and coasting the rest of the way.

"The results were just about as we expected," Brown said, reflecting on the fray, "and one of the major developments seemed to be that the boys were so much more well grounded in our system than they were a year ago in the corresponding game."

CHUCK WIGGINS, ONCE TOP RING THREAT, IS DEAD

INDIANAPOLIS, May 18.—Chuck Wiggins, gay and colorful prizefighter of former years, was dead today at the age of 44, victim of fractured skull which he suffered in a fall down a stairway.

Wiggins in his prime was regarded as of potential heavyweight championship caliber, but refused to take his training seriously and was a familiar figure in night spots and taverns, often right up to the eve of an important ring engagement.

The former fighter was found unconscious on the street near the foot of a stairway last Saturday by a taxicab driver. He failed to rally and died yesterday in a hospital.

He was Gene Tunney's chief sparring mate at a training camp near Chicago when the then world champion was preparing for a return engagement with Jack Dempsey from which he had wrested the title at Philadelphia. Wiggins swapped punch for punch with Tunney and the champ was free to cut loose with all he had in getting ready for the tough rematch with the hard-slugging Dempsey.

Wiggins began fighting in 1919 and within a few years was offering to take on anyone, either in the light heavyweight or heavyweight division. He fared better, however, in the lighter division, but often was a trial horse for the heavies on their way up to the top. In the '30s he made a successful tour of Australia.

SARRINGHAUS, FEKETE ACES IN BUCKEYE FRAY

With Catcher Gene Desautels in the hospital with a fractured leg, suffered during a game with the Tigers in Cleveland, the Indians have recalled Jim Hegan from Baltimore to help out with the catching chores. Loss of Desautels, who is expected to be out six weeks, leaves the Tribe with only one catcher, the rookie, Otto Denning. Hegan was sent to Baltimore on option only a week ago.

TOLEDO HURLER GIVES ONE HIT, BUT LOSES TILT

COLUMBUS, May 18.—Pete Naktanis, bespectacled southpaw hurler for the Milwaukee Brewers, today joined the ranks of the hard-luck pitchers of all time.

Hurling against the Mudhens at Toledo, Pete allowed only one hit, passed only three and struck out two. Yet he was charged with a loss—a 1 to 0 score.

The Mudhens put their run together in the fourth on Stan Galle's single—the only Toledo hit—a sacrifice, a walk, and Jack Bradsher's long fly. Meanwhile Harry Kimberlin, who eased himself out of a first stanza jam, held the Brewers to two hits the rest of the way to register a four hit win.

The Toledo victory gave the Mudhens a split on the twin bill, as the Brewers took the opener, 4-3, behind the five-hit hurling of Vandenberg.

Kansas City maintained a percentage-point margin on first place with a split with the Columbus Red Birds, who climbed out of last place by taking the nightcap. Both games ended 3-1.

Louisville slipped into the cellar berth vacated by the Red Birds when the Colonels dropped a twin bill to St. Paul, losing the first 4-3 in 10 innings, and being shut out, 1-0, in the nightcap, a hurling duel in which the Saints' Swift edged the Colonels' Potter. Swift yielded only four mingles; Potter seven.

Minneapolis also took a double bill with Indianapolis the victim. The Millers took the opener, 3-2, and the 12-inning nightcap, 6-4.

TWO RING TILTS TO DECIDE FOES FOR JOE LOUIS

NEW YORK, May 18.—Two heavyweight bouts will be held Thursday night that may have a bearing over a future opponent for Joe Louis. Bob Pastor, who holds an inside line on the Louis bout should the Army private receive permission to defend his title, meets Tami Maurello Thursday at Madison Square garden in New York and Lou Nova faces Lee Savold for the Navy relief fund the same evening in Washington, D. C.

Pastor, in addition to risking being shunted aside should he lose to the hard hitting Maurello, is also risking a 12-bout winning streak, including among the victims of the man who already has faced Louis twice, were Booker Beckwith, Turkey Thompson, Jimmy Bevens and Lem Franklin.

Nova will be making his first start since being stopped by Louis in six rounds last September. Both Nova and Savold, who has never met the lethal champion, hope to fight their way into the championship picture.

BUCKEYE HARRIERS WIN FIRST BIG TEN HONORS

EVANSTON, Ill., May 18.—Lashing out with a vengeance, Ohio State's track team today held its first Western Conference track title in history, amassing 66 points on the merit of seven first places.

Dedicating their victory to Larry Snyder, former coach and now a commissioned officer in the navy, the Buckeyes with their huge point total accumulated the highest winning score since Illinois' record-breaking mark of 74 in 1924.

Bob Wright and Capt. Ralph Hammond scored doubles in the hurdle events and the dash events respectively to highlight the attack of the Scarlet scanty-clads. Illinois and Indiana tied for second with 30 points each.

Rigid Price Control Ruling Becomes Effective Monday

ALL RETAILERS JOIN IN UNCLE SAM'S PROGRAM

Ceilings Placed On Almost All Things Eaten, Used Or Worn In U. S.

30,000 ITEMS INCLUDED

Subsidies May Be Needed To Keep Some Firms In Operation

Cincinnati community business houses were cooperating Monday in the most far-reaching step ever taken to stabilize the cost of living in the United States—rigid price control which became effective Monday over nearly everything Americans eat, use or wear.

The sweeping government order pegging prices of approximately 30,000 items vital to everyday life to the highest mark they reached in March reduced costs generally approximately one and one-half percent, retail experts estimated.

"The big thing for everyone to remember is that prices under the ceiling are going no higher," Price Chief Leon Henderson said. "The retail price will be held—there will be no increase in the general level."

At one minute past midnight Sunday night, the nation's 1,900,000 retail storekeepers were forbidden to sell virtually all commodities at prices above the OPA price ceilings.

It was the second and most important step in the government's home-front war against inflation and rising cost-of-living. The initial phase, control of the prices charged by some 400,000 manufacturers and wholesalers, went into effect a week ago.

Third Effective Soon

The third and final phase—a ceiling over sales of services at retail—goes into operation on July 1.

Even as retail price control went into effect, however, price administration officials prepared to deal with countless appeals from many retailers who will find operations almost impossible under the "ceilings."

Contending that in many instances their price levels lagged some 10 percent behind wholesale replacement costs, retailers hoped for prompt action in regard to "gross inequities" which Henderson pledged would be readjusted.

OPA representatives indicated, however, that readjustments would be made at the wholesale and manufacturing level and not in retail ceilings.

In Washington circles, speculation centered on the possibility of "subsidies" to keep some business operating. Both Britain and Canada have found subsidies necessary in connection with their price control efforts, officials pointed out.

Prices Different

Meantime, consumers were reminded that maximum prices are the highest prices charged by each individual seller in March. Different stores will have different maximum prices for the same article, it was explained.

On some 170 "cost-of-living" commodities, retailers will be required to post the ceiling prices where the customers can see them. The OPA announced that posting of ceiling prices in "booklet form, or in layers of lists" will not be acceptable.

"Consumers should be able to see the 'ceiling price' marker clearly when standing at the point of purchase without having to ask or look for it, and without having to thumb through pages," Henderson said. "This is the 'eye test.'"

Some Exemptions

All commodities sold at retail, excepting only those specifically excluded in the regulation, are price-controlled. Most important exemptions are the following food products:

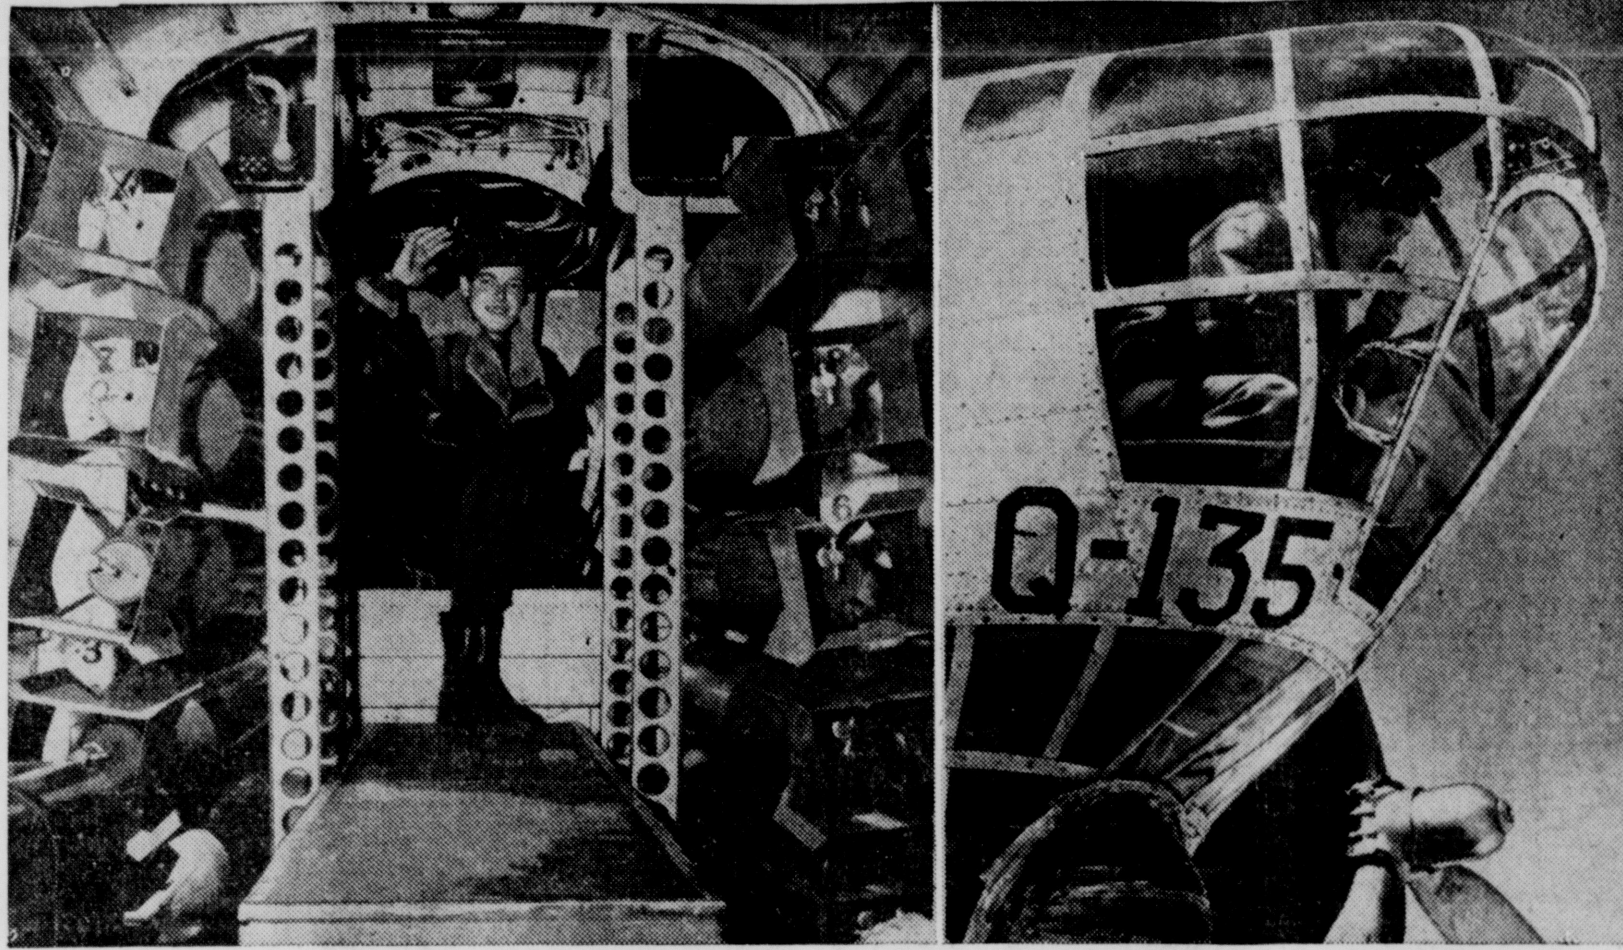

Butter and cheese; evaporated, condensed and other canned milk products; poultry and eggs; fresh fruits and vegetables (except bananas); flour, mutton and lamb, fresh fish, seafood and game; nuts, dried prunes and dry beans.

Other exemptions among articles of common use sold in retail stores are:

Living animals, birds and fowl; books, magazines, newspapers and periodicals; used automobiles; stamps, coins, precious stones (but not jewelry, which is covered); antiques; knotted oriental rugs; paintings, etchings, sculptures and other objects of art.

Not everyone can drink milk with benefit. Dr. Walter C. Alvarez of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., says that one out of every five persons cannot digest milk, and that one out of every 15 persons is poisoned by it.
